

Every interaction that we have with another human being, individually or in a group, is an opportunity to enhance them or diminish them - to raise their self esteem, or to make them feel less good about themselves.

- Leroy Olson